DETAILED ACTIONClaim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 2 and 4-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Regarding claim 2, applicant should clarify the structure/arrangement of the “opposite sense of winding” of the conductor strips.

Regarding claim 4, the term “substantially” is a relative term.

Regarding claim 5, applicant should clarify the “thickness” of the second insulating layer that is chosen depending on the voltage maximally occurring between the two layers of both discs.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Baggermans [US 4,086,552].

Baggermans discloses a magnetic device [20, figure 2] comprising:

- a magnetic core [24];

- a coil structure including first and second coil elements [22, 22'], each formed by a plurality of conductor strip layers insulated from each other by a first insulating layer, wherein the first and second coil elements can be connected in series or parallel; and

- a second insulating layer [28].

Regarding claim 4, Baggermans inherently discloses the first and second coil elements having substantially the same number of layers.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2-3 and 5-6, as best understood in view of the rejection under 35 USC 112 second paragraph, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Baggermans in view of Nichols [US 3,086,184].

Regarding claim 2, Baggermans inherently discloses a connecting means between the first and second coil elements. The specific opposite sense of the conductor strips would have been an obvious design consideration for the purpose of facilitating manufacturing.

Regarding claim 3, Baggermans discloses the instant claimed invention except for electrical connections of the outermost layer.

Nichols discloses a coil structure for a magnetic device comprising:

- a magnetic core [1];

- a coil structure [3] wound about the magnetic core, wherein the coil structure including a plurality of conductor strips/foils [7, 8] insulated by insulating layer [6]; and

- electrical connections [4, 4a, 4b] provided on the outermost and innermost layers.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include electrical connections in Baggermans, as suggested by Nichols, for the purpose of providing electrical connections.

Regarding claim 5, Baggermans inherently discloses the insulating layer [28] having a continuous thickness that is chosen depending on the voltage maximally occurring between the two coil elements.

Regarding claim 6, Nichols discloses an insulating layer [2] disposed around the magnetic core.
